ABSTRACT

This invention provides a method and system for an investor to select from a set of values and compare to values selected to those engaged in by investments in an investment fund. This invention also allows the user to select a value and utilize search engine to find funds that satisfy those values.